CHAPTER XV.

"Well, girls," he said, "both full of adventures, ch? What did they do to you in the Touthe, Laura?"
"Pshaw." What could they do?"
Laura repited. "If they're guys shough to be tricked by a girl, the best thing they can do is to keep mum about it and let her go. That's about what they did to me." demanded.
She told him her story, incoherently, in broken phrases. French listened with puzzled frown.
"Say, what about Quest?" he asked.
"He ain't been here at all, then?"
"Of course not! Mr. Quest?"—
She hesitated. The inspector laid. Inspector French, who was stand-ing a little aloof, regarded Laura with an air of unwilling admiration. "That's some girl, that Mice Laura," he muttered in an undertone to Quest. "She rossied us nicely."
"I mustn't stop to bear your stary. "I mustn't stop to hear your story, Lenora." Quest said. "You're safe— that's the great thing." (To Be Continued.)

CONSIDER PETERS'S OFFER.

President Ralph Peters's suggestion

eat the Long Island Railroad tracks o used for an extension of the new for used for an extension of the new forong clevated line through Flushing o Bay Side, Douglaston and Little Nock will be taken up at a conference setween officials of the railroad and the Public Service Commission next Mon-

Public Service Commission next Monday.

Two great petitions in favor of the project have been filed with the commission, the signatures to one of them covering a nine-foot strip of paper.

No terms under which the Long Island tracks might be used for this purpose have been proposed. It has been pointed out that the city might avoid an investment of $6,000,000 by making the arrangement, and from this it has been inferred that the ratiroad would ask a rental of about $500,000. This is a chief matter to be discussed at the conference. In the mean time counsel to the commission has been instructed to inquire into any need there may be for enabling legislation.

Real estate promoters along the Port Washington division of the Long Island have been making expensive use of the proposal.
